

Phaibul is a professional mechanical engineer working in the field of production manufacturing process for more than 25 years.

He had started engineering career in 1977 with a wood processing and steaming. Then he turned to be a Nilon weaving factory manager at Bangkok Nilon Factory for another three years.

He had decided to invest in food industry business by founding up a pig farm at the beginning and expand to a number of pig farms. Business was running well for several years, he sold his share to his partner where he decided to turn to other business.

The other food industry that he invested and managed at a time was Soya Bean Sauce Factory. With patent formula and great taste, the product both successful in domestic market and export to USA. The business is still running and expanding.

Other than factory business, he is a computerization consultant and IT superintendant for a reputation environmental consultant. He designed and set up networking solution, internet, intranet and website for the company.

He joins Ten Consultants Co., Ltd. in a Director position in the year 2005.
